Metaphor or Simile?

Similes typically use words such as “like” or “as” to compare two things, while metaphors compare two unlike things without those visual clues.

Circle the similes in BLUE. Circle the metaphors in RED. (Hint: There may be more than one in each sentence.)

1. It began raining cats and dogs, so I ran like the wind all the way home.
2. Even though they just met, Pam and Cindy were two peas in a pod.
3. He may eat like a horse, but he’s as strong as a bull.
4. Her eyes sparkled like diamonds, her hair was soft as silk, and her lips were red berries.
5. The tree was a gnarled old man, tall and wise.
6. My new bike was sleek and fast and resembled a race car.
7. The falling white blossoms made it look like a snowy winter day.
8. My feet were as cold as ice.
9. The photograph was a memory of another time far in my past.
10. The first day of summer was a long-lost friend after the cold, snowy winter.
1. It began raining cats and dogs, so I ran like the wind all the way home.

2. Even though they just met, Pam and Cindy were two peas in a pod.

3. He may eat like a horse, but he’s as strong as a bull.

4. Her eyes sparkled like diamonds, her hair was soft as silk, and her lips were red berries.

5. The tree was a gnarled old man, tall and wise.

6. My new bike was sleek and fast and resembled a race car.

7. The falling white blossoms made it look like a snowy winter day.

8. My feet were as cold as ice.

9. The photograph was a memory of another time far in my past.

10. The first day of summer was a long-lost friend after the cold, snowy winter.